If you're looking for the college that's right for you, we can help.

Selecting a college can be a tough decision. There are so many things to consider: academic programs, the quality of the college, the value it offers, geographic location, campus life, and, of course, college costs and financial aid. This booklet can guide you through the college selection process by providing the information you need to make an informed decision about your college education.

So where do you begin your college search?

- Start with this guide. If you know what you want to study, go to the Academic Programs file, or online at www.nycolleges.org, which lists bachelor's and associate degree programs offered by private colleges and universities in New York State.
- Use the College Search Worksheet to help you begin to compile a list (your "long list") of colleges based on your interests. Find out more about them. The Locator Map on pages 3-4 pinpoints geographic locations and the Campus Profiles section, pages 5-19, gives you basic information about the colleges on your list.
- Attend college fairs. You can speak with college representatives and pick up literature about different colleges.
- For more information about any college in this guide, fill out the Request for College Information on-line form at www.nycolleges.org/register.html.

Finding, evaluating, and choosing a college requires planning and information – keep an open mind and you're sure to discover a college that suits your needs.

- In your junior and senior years, visit the colleges that interest you. Before you visit, make an appointment to meet with faculty in your academic interest areas. While you're there, take the official tour, walk around on your own, and talk with students.
- Early on, begin to investigate sources of financial aid. Refer to page 20 for ways to get started.
- By fall of your senior year, shorten your college list – usually around five to eight choices.
- If possible, talk to current students or graduates of these colleges. Ask your school counselor and the colleges' admissions counselors for the contact names of students or graduates.
- Now that you've decided on a short list, obtain admissions and financial aid forms. Fill out the forms carefully and be sure to meet all deadlines.

Maybe you have a very specific academic interest. Perhaps you're still searching. Either way, there's a New York State private college or university that's right for you.

What to Look for in a College

If you're looking for quality and value, you'll find it at a New York State private college or university.

Fortunately, colleges are as individual as people. Campus environments differ. Academic programs vary. And every college has a distinct personality. The private colleges and universities found in every region of New York State give you wonderful choice. Some are urban. Some are rural. Some are large, some small. But they share common ground: they all offer quality and excellent value for your investment.

Quality. Value. They're important concepts, but what do they mean in practical terms?

With scholarships and other aid money, private colleges are often no more expensive – and sometimes less costly – than state colleges.

Quality.

The quality of your college degree matters. It matters to you and your learning experience, and it matters in the job market. While New York State's private colleges and universities differ in programs, and features, all are high-quality institutions that offer students important benefits. These are some of the features you should consider in a college.

- Strong academic departments.
- Small class size.
- Low student-to-teacher ratio.
- World-class, dedicated faculty.
- Opportunity for activities outside the classroom.

- Teaching that inspires critical thinking.
- For certain academic majors, research opportunities, internship programs or study abroad.
- Outstanding career placement services.

The quality of your degree will count in the job market, so choose a college with a solid reputation and strong academic departments.

Value.

What defines good value? When looking at colleges, keep this in mind: Good values show a solid return on investment.

Because the college you choose will shape your future, you should choose carefully. With a college degree, you can expect to earn more; lifetime earnings are higher, on average, than for those with a high school degree alone – 31% more with an associate degree and 86% more with a bachelor's degree.

When you choose your college, think about the kind of learning environment you want, and the value of your future degree. At New York's private colleges and universities, you'll benefit from your contacts with well-known faculty and alumni; you'll have opportunities to gain real-life experience; and you'll enjoy the pleasure of forming personal relationships with professors who come to know you, your interests, and your talents.

What a college looks for in its students.

When you're searching for the right college, there are at least two things to consider: what you want in a college. And what the college wants in you.

If you start early enough, you'll find a college that meets your criteria and have the time to improve your chances of being admitted. Think about your strengths, and the qualities you want to bring to the college environment.

Here are some qualities colleges look for in their applicants.

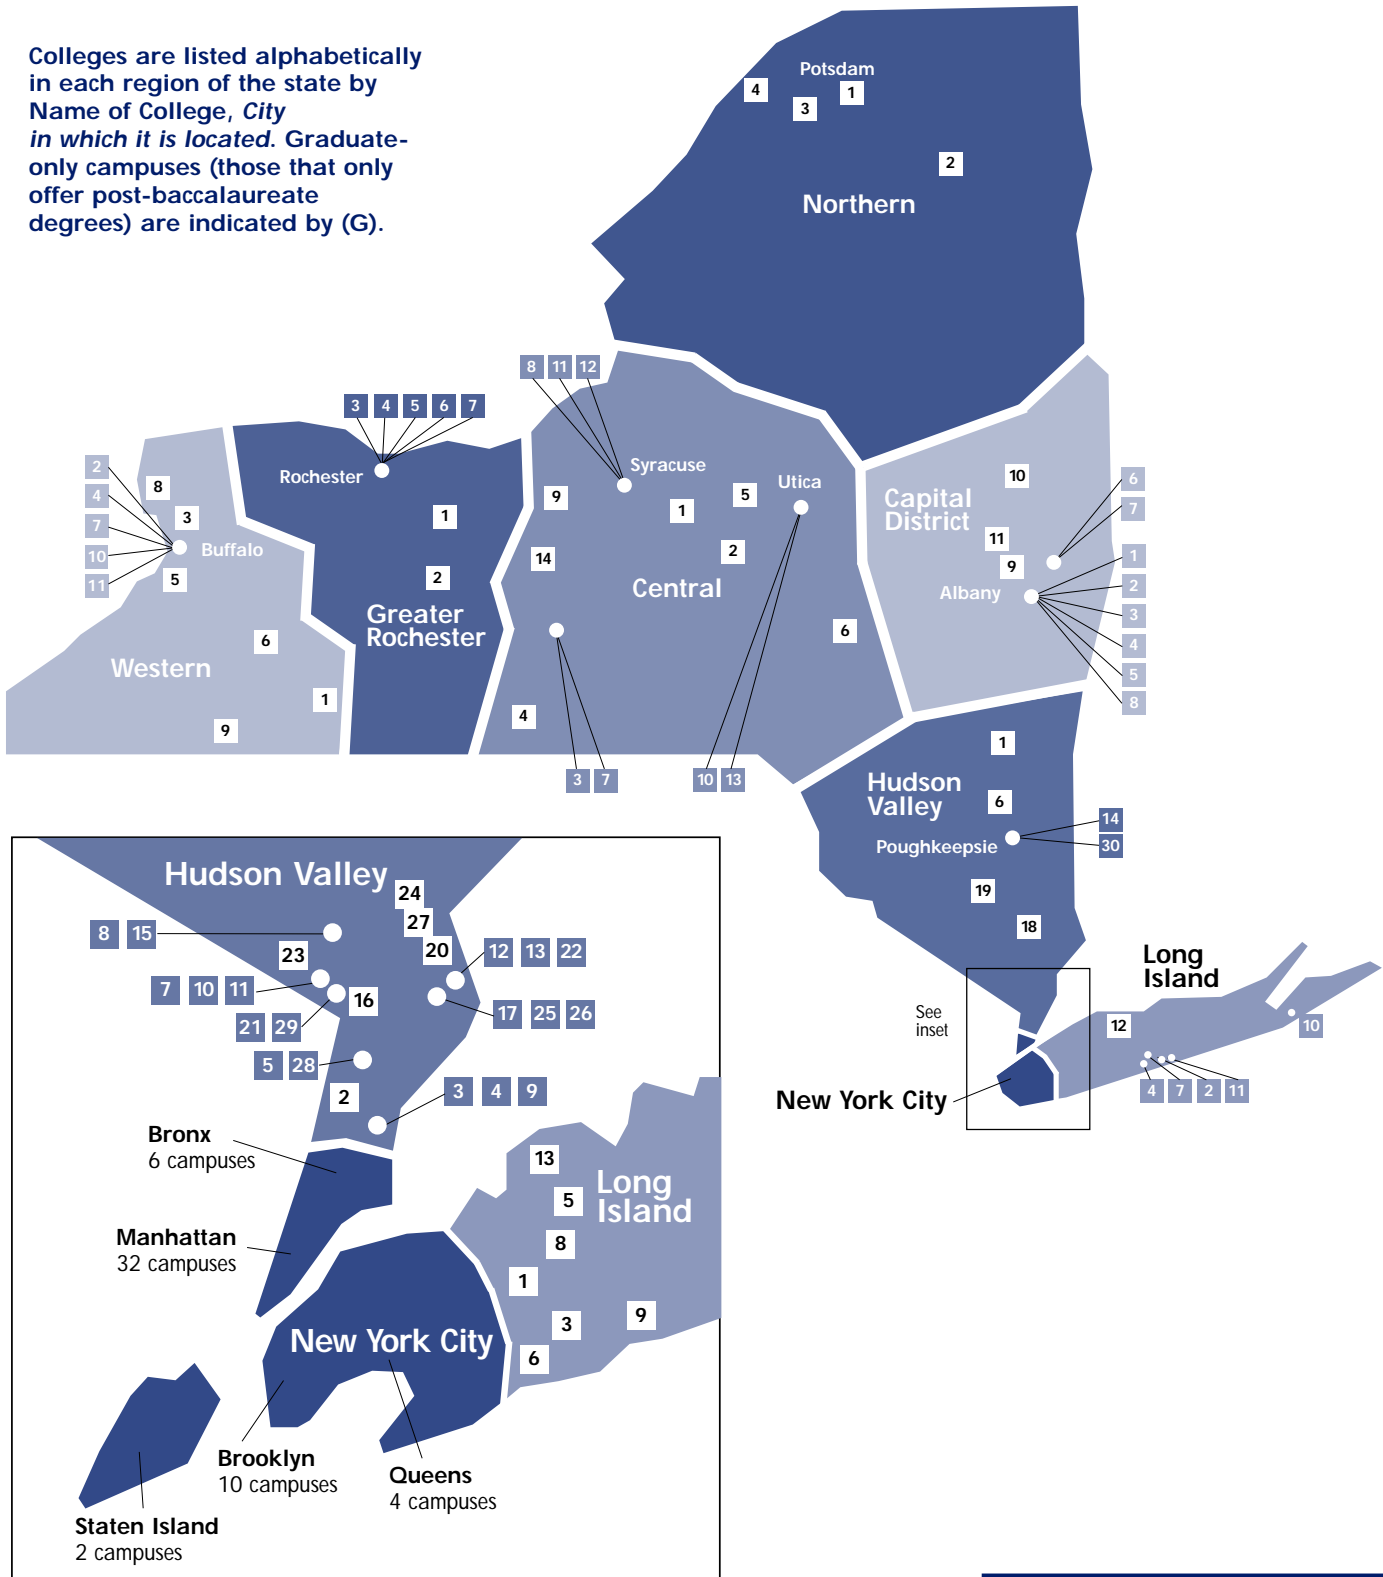

- Academic strengths.
- Choices of challenging coursework.
- High marks in a range of courses.
- Ranking among high school peers, including senior year ranking.
- SAT or ACT scores.
- Extracurricular activities – commitment, rather than quantity, is the key.
- Recommendations from teachers and others.
- Written self-expression, often judged by your application essay.
- Verbal expression and presentation.
- Leadership ability and positions.
- Level of interest in and enthusiasm for the college.

One more thing: never exclude colleges because of cost. You may be surprised at how much financial aid is available and, with aid packages, you may find that private colleges are no more expensive – and sometimes less costly – than state colleges. (See page 20 for more on financial aid.)

College Terminology

Annual College Cost - includes tuition, fees, room, board, books, transportation, and personal expenses. These costs vary from college to college.

Associate - degree awarded on completion of a 2-year (usually) program of study.

Bachelor's - (baccalaureate) degree awarded on completion of a 4-year (usually) program of study.

Common Application - a number of colleges accept the same application, the Common Application. Check with the college.

Early Action - a non-binding early application process allowing students to learn the admission decision before the official candidate notification date.

Early Decision - a binding early commitment process where students are notified of acceptance and are expected to commit to enrollment before regular applicants.

Financial aid - aid to assist in meeting college costs which may be in the form of grants, scholarships, loans, or work-study. Always meet these application deadlines. See the inside back cover for more information about financial aid.

First Professional - a course of study culminating in a degree and license in a profession such as law, medicine, etc.

Graduate and Professional students - those working toward a master's, doctorate, post-graduate certificate, or professional license.

Interview - a conversation with a college admission or faculty representative.

Master's and Doctorate - advanced degrees awarded for completion of additional study beyond a bachelor's (4-year) degree.

Recommendation - a written assessment of the student's aptitudes, abilities and interests written by a teacher, counselor, coach, etc.

Rolling admission - an institution reviews applications as they are received and offers decision to students as applications are reviewed.

Room & Board - college housing and meal plans (often several options are available).

SAT I and the ACT - standardized tests that measure verbal and math proficiency colleges use to predict the likelihood of a student's success in college.

SAT II's - subject-specific exams required by many colleges (e.g. English [writing], math [IC or IIC], physics, chemistry).

Undergraduate student - one working toward a 2-year (associate) or a 4-year (bachelor's) degree.

Affording Your College of Choice

Now that you've found the college you really want to attend, how do you pay for it?

The first thing is: don't give up on the college of your choice. Even if you think you can't afford it.

Happily, the truth is that anyone who has the desire and the academic credentials can make a college education a reality. Each year, more than $65 billion in aid is available to help families meet college costs. Because New York State private colleges and universities are committed to helping students and their families, you rarely pay the "sticker price." And while your decision to go to college is an investment of time and money, it can cost far less than you think it might. And, the return – for the rest of your life – will be tremendous.

The Tuition Assistance Program (TAP) provides up to $5,000 a year for eligible students from New York State who plan to attend New York State colleges and universities.

Today, most students attending college receive some form of financial assistance. The major sources of financial aid available to families include:

- grants and scholarships from colleges and from federal and state governments;
- loans from the federal government, some colleges, and private lenders;
- job programs on- or off-campus.

New York's private colleges and universities annually award more than $1.6 billion in grants to students – some of that money could be for you.

Typically, a financial aid package includes a combination of grants, scholarships, low-interest loans, and work-study. In addition, there are other sources of aid to investigate:

- benefits offered by employers;
- competitive scholarships from civic and religious organizations;
- scholarships for study in specific academic subjects or toward certain professions.

The bottom line is: money is available for your college education. It's important to explore your options, stay determined, and be aware of deadlines. The result? You're not just going to college, you're going to the college of your choice.
